

Refresh your MPH APE basics!

As we head into the new school year, now is the perfect time to ask yourselves, are you making the most out of your students' Applied Practice Experience? Keep these basics in mind as you review your protocol.

1 Students must demonstrate a minimum of 5 competencies, three of which must be foundational, through at least two applied work products created for the sites use and benefit.

2 Examples of suitable work products include project plans, grant proposals, training manuals, surveys, memos, and other digital artifacts. For additional examples, check out the criteria document!

3 Remember, documents prepared for academic purposes may not be counted as a work product. Summaries and reflections are NOT suitable work products to satisfy this criterion.

4 Faculty (not preceptors) must assess work products to ensure that students appropriately demonstrate the selected competencies. Successful units often use forms and/or rubrics to guide this assessment.
